Sermon to His Congregation. The Rev. A. W. Shields, who has for several years officiated as the pastor of the Virginia Avenue Baptist Church, which is one of the largest colored congregations in this city, resigned his pastorate of that church yesterday, as it was stated in The Star he would do, and delivered his farewell sermon. For his final sermon he sewell sermon. For his final sermon he selected as the basis of his remarks the text from Corinthians, "When Paul left the people whom he had been instructing in the word of God he felt sad." He said that he, like Paul, felt sad now that the time had come for him to bid his former flock faremall.

He declared that he had labored earnestly with the people, but that discord having arisen among part of the flock, he came to say farewell. "And finally, brethren, farewell; live in peace, that the God of peace may be with you," were his closing re-

He said in the course of his remarks that when he assumed the pastorate of the church in 1893 he found the church divided and much dissatisfaction existing among church in 1883 he found the church divided and much dissatisfaction existing among the membership, and heavily in debt, without credit. He says that his first attempt after assuming the pastorate was to attempt to bring the members together. The trustee and deacon boards were reorganized, and all of the minor debts were merged into one. He secured a loan of $6,000, and had the church replastered and stained glass windows put in the edifice. Still, he declared, there was a part of the congregation who did not have a mind to work; they toiled not, neither did they spin, and attempted to sow discord. This, he declared, had handicapped him in his work, and he tendered his resignation in the hope of finding a field elsewhere, where his labors would be more fully appreciated. Rev. Shields is a member of the Baptist Ministers' Union, which comprises all of the colored Baptist churches here, and is well thought of among the ministry. The officials of the Virginia Avenue Church would have nothing to say as to the case of their pastor's resignation.

It was later learned that the assignment was invalid because Tuttle is not a resident of the District. Mrs. Katie Kyle Jumps Into the Eastern

Rescued After a Struggle - Reason

Given for the Attempt-Tried

For the second time in less than three months Mrs. Katie Kyle, the eighteenyear-old wife of William Kyle, living on O street near 11th street southeast, has ade a desperate attempt to commit suicide, and but for the energetic efforts of Mr. Joseph Low she would have succeeded in her last effort.

From the husband of the woman and others it was learned that Mr. and Mrs. Kyle were sitting in the parlor of their home about 10 o'clock yesterday morning when Mrs. Kyle suddenly arose from her chair and said, "Will, I am going over to Anacostia to see Dr. Harrison and ask him if he cannot give me some medicine that will do me good."

The husband made no objection, and Mrs. Kyle passed out of the house and down to the Navy Yard bridge, a short distance away, and, proceeding to the draw, jumped into the channel a few feet below. The movements of Mrs. Kyle had not been observed by any of the few persons who were on the bridge at the time, but the noise made by her falling into the water attracted the attention of Mr. Joseph Low, who sprang after her.

Pleads to Be Released.

He managed to grasp Mrs. Kyle, but the latter begged him to release her, saying "Let me drown; my heart is broken." Meanwhile a number of men in boats who had been attracted to the scene, were pulling to Mr. Low's assistance. Mr. Low and Mrs. Kyle were nearly exhausted when gotten into one of the boats. They were taken at once to Hutchinson's boat house, at the north end of the Navy Yard bridge, where an examination showed that Mrs. Kyle was in a very serious con-

Later Dr. T. D. Mudd of Anacostia pro nounced her to be in a very critical state from the effects of the shock she had re-ceived and the quantity of water she had Before taking her leap from the bridge, Mrs. Kyle dropped a note on the structure, and this was picked up and given to Mr. Kyle.

A Note to Her Husband. The note was written in a clear hand and was as follows: WASHINGTON, D. C., August 18, 1895. Darling Will:

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 18, 1850.

Darling Will:

Remember me. I have gone from you with a broken heart. I can't stand it any ionger, and all I ask of you is to pray for me, and ask all to pray for me. Tell my mother and all at home that I have drowned myself; that my heart was broke.

Oh! God help me.

MRS. KATIE KYLE.

KATIE KYLE.

The name was signed twice. In explanation of the words used in the letter, Mr. Kyle said that his wife before her marriage, about a month ago, was a Miss Gately, whose home was in Northwest Washington, and who, until she became Mrs. Kyle was employed in one of the laundries she gave up her position in the laundries of the city. When the wedding took place she gave up her position in the laundry, and within two weeks the husband, who up to that period had had steady employment with Contractor Rogers, who is driving the place for the city street sower was laid with Contractor Rogers, who is driving the piles for the 6th street sewer, was laid off because of the mon-arrival of material for the work, and for the past two weeks Mr. Kyle has had nothing to do.

The change in their circumstances, he said, produced a most depressing effect on Mrs. Kyle, and for several days past she had sat in the house continually, brooding over her misfortunes. A neighbor whose house Mrs. Kyle has frequently visited since her marriage told The Star visited since her marriage told The Star reporter that Mrs. Kyle had often told his family that she intended to drown herself, but they regarded the matter as idle threats.

Previously Tried to Drown Herself. While lying in bed yesterday one of her relatives asked Mrs. Kyle if she was not sorry she had tried to kill herself, and she replied. "I don't know." In reference to the previous attempt or the part of Mrs. Kyle to drown herself Mr. Kyle said that occurred about six weeks before their marriage. He and she were walking on the Navy Yard bridge cne night, when, so far as he knew, without there being any cause for her doing so, she suddenly dashed from his side and ran to the daw. From which she was about to to the draw, from which she was about t jump into the river, when he seized and prevented her.

So far as known, the domestic relations of Mr. and Mrs. Kyle have been of the pleasantest character.

THE LABOR DAY PARADE.

Reports Indicate That 6,000 Men Will

The Labor day conference which took place yesterday afternoon at Typographical Temple was well attended, and was largely devoted to the reception of reports from representatives of societies which are expected to be in line. It was stated less than 6,000, while there is more probability that the actual number of those in the procession will be greater rather than less than these figures. There is no doubt from present indications that the various uniforms to be worn will be a striking feature of the occasion.

In every instance they will be appropriate to the craft represented.

There were a number of assemblies whose delegates announced that they would wear uniforms, but who were not prepared to say of what the uniform would consist. It is believed from the number of bands of music that have been engaged, nearly every organization will be preceded

Improvement of the Sidewalks. To the Editor of The Evening Star:

The granolithic pavement, which is prom ised to all who desire it and are willing to pay for it, is the most beautiful and durable of all pavements yet laid in Washington, but if it is to be marred by threefcot borders of mud along the curb lines, as is now being done, by authority, and not, it is believed, by the wish of the people, we had better return to the old gravelly brick pavement and escape the annoyances which will result from this mistaken idea of economy and moisture for trees. The saving will be small when compared to the amount of dirt ever present in front of our doors, and the trees will thrive no better than they would with the usual tree space as heretofore. What, with the hoodlums and others constantly going out of their way to walk upon such spaces, as they do now and will continue upon all sodded points within their reach, the scratching of dogs and washing by heavy rains, this experiment will prove to be more hard to remedy than the miserable sidewalks with which we have been affiicted. If an officer can be stationed on each block to arrest trespassers and shoot elly brick pavement and escape the an nicted. If an officer can be stationed on each block to arrest trespassers and shoot dogs, and the parking commission will see that the grass is kept green, this venture may prove successful; otherwise, it will be worse where this pavement is laid than it now is at the corner of New York avenue and 9th street, and in the tree spaces, which have been filled with red road-sand and gravel instead of being sodded, as was expected. Let us hope that the Commisexpected. Let us hope that the Commis-sioners will, upon second thought, discon-tinue this practice and give us good, clear sidewalks from the building line to the

The committee of entertainment, consisting of John Waldman, chairman; William Meyer, Frank Clandy, Charles Rogier ard August Smith, performed their work well and left no stone unturned to provide amusement for all. The feature of the day was the musical program, which was rendered by the different singing societies. The Maennerchor, under the direction of The Maennerchor, under the direction of Prof. Christiani, rendered a number of se lections, which were followed by the Ario under the leadership of Prof. Emil Holer. The two societies then combined and gave "Jaeger's Abschlied," "Wie Had Ich Siegelebt" and "Studenten Nachtgesang," rendering all in a pleasing manner. The return trip to the city, was also calliers and the city. trip to the city was also enlivened by some excellent music, in which the younger members of the societies took part.

Capt. E. S. Randall will give a special family excursion to Colonial Beach Friday next, at the urgent request of his patrons. The fast steamer Sam'l J. A Floral Trolley Car.

The employes of the Washington, Alexandria and Mt. Vernon Railway Company sent a floral trolley car to the family of the late Superintendent Holden of that road, on the occasion of his funeral Saturday afternoon. The emblem was composed of carnations, roses and other flowers, and was designed by Electrician Colvin of the road and executed by Gude & Bro., the florists. It was a miniature fac-simile of a car, with trolley pole and all.

Kernan's Lyceum Theater.-The popularity of Kernan's Lyceum Theater and the eager desire of the people for some form day night on the occasion of the opening entertainment of the season. Not a seat was vacant and standing room was at a premium. Manager Kernan smiled with satisfaction as the crowds passed in and Treasurer Balluff, in the box office, proved himself a lightning ticket seller. The attraction was the Cyrene Vaudeville Company, and all the people were warmly received. The only change from the published program was the failure of Cogan and Bacon to put in an appearance, but they were substituted by Arma Donah and Madeline Morse, who gave a sketch in which both did some good singing. M'lle Milatta did a graceful serpentine dance, which had to be repeated, and then Baker and Beydell did an amusing comedy sketch. Cyrene and M'lle Tunour were seen in a well arranged pentruture. sketch. Cyrene and M'lle Tunour were seen in a well arranged pantomime, en-titled "After the Bull Fight," in which toth did some neat and artistic dancing. It was the first time Cyrene had been seen lere in a male character, and her shapely figure and graceful movements won the loud plaudits of the audience.

Kittie Walsh made a hit in her Irish song and dance set. Cynninghem and Kittie Walsh made a hit in her Irish song and dance act; Cunningham and Staley gave a novel musical and acrobatic act; Raymond and Welsh were good in a burlesque gymnastic performance; Cyrene's exhibition on the swinging wire was a remarkable performance, which took the house by storm, and M'lle Tunour's work as a living picture on the high trapeze was picturesque, daring and effective. A series of living pictures concluded the prowas picturesque, daring and effective. A series of living pictures concluded the program proper, and then there was a supplementary performance in the summer garden, in which Cyrene gave the sensational Trilby dance. The whole entertainment was enjoyable, and the same program will be given all this week.

Bijou Theater.—Mr. W. H. Easton, who is to be the manager of the Bijou Theater this season, arrived in the city this morning to prepare for the opening of that house, which will take place September 9.

Grand Opera House.—Mr. Robert Downing's company, which will open the season at the Grand Opera House on September 2, when Mr. Downing will present Sardou's "Helena," is now in the city, and rehearsals commenced today.
